

IMOGEN ALICE SLAUGHTER (V92-94)

She was born in 1976 and after leaving the College (where she appeared in a number of successful lead roles) she undertook 2 years of training at the Oxford School of Drama.

She has appeared in theatres and on TV in plays - among her works are :-

1999 – was an understudy for the role of Helena in the Royal National Theatre’s revival of “Look Back In Anger”.

2000- appeared in Albert Speer at the National Theatre, London in the roles of Frau Maria von Below, a Ukrainian "Tufty" & as a waitress.

2000 – starred in the 4 part TV series of Elizabeth on Channel 4, in the title role as Elizabeth.

2001 – played the part of Ludmilla Steinherz in Lulu starring Anna Friel at the Almeida Theatre, Kings Cross. It was the first time the play had been performed in its entirety in Britain.

2004 – appeared as Fran Saunders in the 248th episode of The Bill.

2005 - founded the fringe venue The Clerkenwell Theatre, producing and performing in plays for The Clerkenwell Theatre Company, including "Baby with the Bathwater", " Merchant of Venice" and "Titanic Tales"

2006 – starred in the Alan Ayckbourn play “Private Fears in Public Places”. She is described as “mesmeric” as the highly-strung Nicola.

She has also appeared as Juliet Fleming in the TV series Doctors, played Sally Craven in an episode of Silent Witness, as well as What If – Boadicea and The Electricity Man.

She has also appeared in the films – Morning was Broken, Romeo Thinks Again and Urban Roulette

